"The power of the Internet should be available to all citizens. Improvements to its infrastructure should not be just for a wealthy few. The superhighway analogy is apt. The internet is one of the last ways the citizens can get the information they need to keep this a true democracy. Information about our government has already been heavily censored on TV, radio, and in the newspapers and magazines. Freedom of speech must be maintained on the internet and not controlled by the same corporations that restrict it in all other media. "	Joseph Micketti Ashland, OR 97520
